

land which they and their neighbours had enjoyed since his 1945 death, and destroying what remained of the natural aspect of the land. The view from our grandparents' house had been of trees, and the ocean (see the aerial photo by my mother below, from 1994), and is now of hideous, concrete monstrosities.

